

THE SERPENT DOES NOT STOP

VISION. THE WARRIOR IS OLDER THAN THE OTHERS. SHE HAS BEEN HERE BEFORE.

The serpent never stops moving. That is why we chose it. You cannot hold a serpent still.

Rome built walls. We went around. Rome made treaties. We signed them and kept moving. Rome sent legions. We dispersed and came back. We are not a tribe: we are a current of people who refuse to be still.

We brought this shield here because even a moving people need somewhere to remember. The serpent coils here while the people move. When you need to find us, look for the place where we left something standing still.

*Some of our children signed their names as Romans. That is fine.
They are still moving. The name does not matter. The motion does.*

We will still be here when the walls fall.

Vision ends. The torchflame leans toward the far archway.
