

OBJECT FOUND — ENTRY PASSAGE

A thumb-sized tile carved from pale bone. One face is smooth. The other bears a single rune, cut deep and deliberate:

THE CARVING IS OLD. THE EDGES ARE WORN
FROM HANDLING.

An iron pin runs through a hole bored at the top, as if it was meant to be worn or carried close. The pin is cold despite the ambient heat of the torches.