

DISCOVERY — SHIELD HALL, FAR ARCHWAY

There is a slight wrongness in the wall to the left of the archway.

Not a gap. The stones are continuous. But one shield has been hung with its face to the wall rather than facing the room.

Every other shield in the Shield Hall faces outward. This one faces in, its boss pressed against the stone. It has been placed that way deliberately. The leather grip is still intact. Someone put it here and left it.

Reaching behind the shield: the stone gives slightly. It is not load-bearing. It is a panel.

What is inside the alcove is described when the panel is opened.